Luke relates the visitation to Mary by the Archangel Gabriel: "Do not be afraid Mary, for you have found favor with God." Then follows her lovely poem "Canticle of Mary" and my favorite Christmas story; with Hosts of Angels, shepherds, and the baby king in swaddling clothes. Mystery and Hope and Beauty await me in these sacred pages.

Behold, the Lamb of God - Catholic Daily Reflections

Many of us would like to have several hours in the day for prayer, Bible study and reflection, but for many this is simply not possible. Our spiritual lives seem to be defined by chaos rather than order. In 'Sacred Chaos' Tricia McCary Rhodes shares how God found her in the midst of her chaotic life, and that He is able to turn every part of your life into something sacred.

Sacred hieroglyphs record 'sacred' planetary chaos. In my book (An Ancient World in Chaos) I make the very simple (albeit outrageous) proposal that the hieroglyphs and the divine images were considered 'sacred' because they are all to do with cosmic chaos and events above - they have little, if anything, to do with events here on earth.
